"Managing water that runs uphill is easier than water running downhill!" • Dr. Gary Hawkins, UGA

Moving water uphill takes some effort with pumps, pipes and valves. Turning the pump on delivers water needed to have nice tee boxes, fairways, and greens. But when it rains, water wants to and will move downhill. Managing this water is a little different. I will discuss stormwater, erosion, and water quality issues related to the water moving downhill - on its own. As good stewards, knowing what is in this downhill moving water is important to all of us and we will discuss some of the things to consider, how to sample, and looking at the results. Managing the water you move uphill helps others get Pars and Birdies. Managing the water that flows downhill helps the birdies on your course, but also can help you score an Eagle!
